

Good morning traders,

Our new low float MMJ stock profile is focusing on the medical benefits of CBD's in cannabis without the adverse side effects caused by THC - 1pm Industries, Inc. (OTCQB: OPMZ)

This is a very similar situation to our recent 200% OTCMKTS MMJ gainer.

Solving a problem in the medical cannabis field

BuzzKill product mentioned below- provides protection against the high associated from THC helping the consumer to reduce the intoxicating effects of THC, such as psychoactive effect, memory impairment and paranoia.

Some people simply will not look to cannabis as a treatment option due to the side effects listed above. This could be a huge step forward for the medical use of cannabis.

Recent news and Highlights

On March 16th, 2016 1PM Industries announced the launch of their Nano-Cannabidiol (Nano-CBD) product line.

The Company's Nano-CBD are ion-sized nutrients of CBD that are encased with water molecules. Due to their incredibly small size, nano-particles ingested in food and water are fundamentally different and can move throughout the body in advanced ways through cells' membranes. Typically, only 7-10% of CBD ingested is absorbed and used by the body. However, nanotechnology allows the body to absorb up to 95% of the CBD.

Due to this incredible technology, people have reported faster response times with greater results. Experts on nanotechnology are virtually unanimous that nanoscale materials have the potential for health effects that are uniquely different from the same substances comprised of larger-sized molecules.

Particularly interesting excerpt from this press release in regards to their technology

CBD Shots: The Company will be launching its 1.9 ounce CBD shots in 50mg and 100mg levels and will be available in Strawberry Soda and Mango Soda flavors. It has some amazing anti-pain, anti-inflammatory, anti-anxiety benefits, but without any kind of high. It doesn't put you to sleep. It calms you down. It allows you to deal with things. The Company expects to begin taking orders for the CBD shots in April 2016.

BuzzKill: BuzzKill provides protection against the high associated from THC helping the consumer to reduce the intoxicating effects of THC, such as psychoactive effect, memory impairment and paranoia. This is achieved through the product's proprietary blend and a high dose of CBD. Samples have been sent out and the Company will began accepting orders for BuzzKill on March 11, 2016 with initial shipments sent out on March 12, 2016.

"There is extraordinary confusion about the differences between CBD and medical marijuana, and we know that a first step in educating the public is to create products that take smoking and THC out of the picture," said Wade. "1PM Industries is all about providing CBD supplements that can be taken as a liquid shot or consumed in various products. It's a step towards helping CBD become a mainstream wellness supplement like fish oil." Full PR- <http://finance.yahoo.com/news/1pm-industries-launches-line-cannabidiol-120000030.html>

Medical Marijuana and 1PM Industries (OTCQB: OPMZ)

Most everyone has heard of THC, it is the chemical ingredient found in marijuana that gets the user high. Another key compound found in marijuana that is making quite a name for itself is CBD or cannabidiol. CBD is non-psychoactive, which makes it a poor choice for recreational user but gives it a significant advantage as a medicine with almost no side effects.

A study published in The Journal of Pharmacology And Experimental Therapeutics acknowledged the fact that cannabinoids have been shown to possess antitumor properties. The effect of cannabidiol (CBD's) on human glioma cells showed a dramatic drop in the viability of glioma cells. (Brain tumors) The study concluded that CBD's were able to produce significant antitumor activity.

Another study published by the US National Library of Medicine concluded that clinical testing of CBD against prostate cancer is a must. Cannabinoid receptor activation induces carcinoma cell apoptosis. It was determined that cannabidiol significantly inhibited cell viability.

Another study published in the US National Library of Medicine, conducted by the California Pacific Medical Centre found that CBD inhibits breast cancer cell proliferation and invasion in humans. It was also demonstrated that cannabidiol significantly reduced tumor mass.

The Epilepsy Foundation, states that CBD's could be helpful in controlling seizures. And 48 people included in the reports, no side effects reported.

There are several ways to administer CBDs. Smoking is one method and using a vaporizer is another method both of which are suspect to the medical user. Medically speaking, the best and safest way, is to ingest the compounds, through infused products. This delivers the medicine to the bloodstream where it travels throughout the body. Finding and plugging into cannabinoid receptors.

In conclusion it certainly looks like 1PM Industries (OPMZ) has done their homework and is poised to lead, in regard to their CBD infused product line. Making their products safe to administer, by way of ingestion and good for you as a preventative. Also used to help fight off unwanted diseases.
